Justina Fakhry focuses her practice on financial services litigation, assisting financial institutions, lenders and loan servicers with disputes involving the enforcement of contractual rights and remedies. She works with clients to evaluate their legal options, protect their financial interests and pursue efficient resolutions to lending-related disputes.

Justina draws on her broader litigation experience in both state and federal courts, as well as her background in commercial litigation. Her experience includes managing discovery, taking and defending depositions, drafting substantive motions, representing clients in contested hearings and participating in settlement negotiations.
