Abby Higgins advises health care providers on state and federal healthcare regulatory compliance, with a focus on health care technology and innovative health care delivery. Her work includes analyzing regulatory risk, structuring compliant arrangements and supporting the development and deployment of multi-state practices. Abby coordinates across regulatory frameworks to help clients navigate evolving requirements while advancing operational and innovation goals. Abby also regularly works as a privacy and health care regulatory specialist on transactions.

Prior to law school, Abby worked at a health care technology company working with large academic and pediatric organizations to implement and operationalize their electronic medical records in compliance with relevant laws.
