Adria Lamba represents businesses in complex commercial litigation, including contract disputes, class actions, employment-related matters and other high-stakes business conflicts. Clients rely on Adria for strategic leadership in multi-party and multi-claim litigation.

Adria handles matters in federal and state courts from inception through trial and appeal. She regularly leads case teams in complex disputes, secures and defends against injunctive relief, manages dispositive motion practice and prepares cases for trial. Her experience spans a broad range of industries and includes defending companies against claims involving fraud, contract disputes and statutory causes of action.

Clients value Adria's focus on efficient case management and alignment with business objectives. She works closely with decision-makers to assess risk, develop strategy and position cases for favorable resolution, whether through motion practice, negotiated settlement or trial.

Adria approaches litigation with disciplined preparation and clear communication, helping clients navigate complex disputes while maintaining focus on operational priorities.
