agleizer@polsinelli.com

Ashley Gleizer helps employers navigate workplace disputes and compliance questions under California and federal employment law. As a labor and employment litigation associate, she supports businesses and in-house teams with practical, plain-English guidance and diligent case support from early strategy through resolution.

Ashley's experience includes working on wage-and-hour matters, including PAGA claims and related representative action issues. She assists with key litigation tasks such as written discovery, deposition preparation, and motion practice support. She also contributes to mediation and arbitration preparation, including organizing factual records, drafting and revising materials, and helping teams evaluate options for efficient resolution.
