Clients rely on Brendan to provide practical solutions on a wide range of transactional and development-related real estate matters. Brendan supports all phases of the real estate life cycle, including acquisitions and dispositions, leasing, development and financing.

Brendan has experience assisting with complex real estate transactions across the United States, including acquisitions and sale-leaseback transactions for REITs, as well as development and land use matters for large mixed-use, multifamily, hospitality and retail projects. He regularly works with developers, owners and investors on purchase and sale transactions, project development and related due diligence matters.

His work also includes supporting large-scale development projects involving entitlement and land use issues, public financing and metropolitan district matters, and mixed-use redevelopment initiatives. Brendan has assisted clients with projects ranging from student housing developments, large mixed-use projects, multifamily, senior living and urban infill development.
