Brian Wolf works to identify practical and business-focused legal solutions to meet the unique goals and business objectives of his clients. He is a trusted advisor to clients, working collaboratively with them to address the unique legal and business challenges they encounter. Brian has extensive experience in counseling clients throughout the life cycle of a business, whether handling their day-to-day legal matters or significant transactions, including structuring complex business entities, assisting clients with raising capital, structuring and implementing incentive compensation, drafting and negotiating key commercial contracts, advising management on corporate governance matters, and structuring and implementing strategic transactions, including, mergers and acquisitions, sale of business, joint ventures, and strategic alliances.

Brian focuses a significant amount of his practice on merger and acquisition transactions. He has extensive experience in representing sponsors and investors in strategic real estate joint venture transactions. In addition, he serves as outside general counsel to clients in a variety of industries (including real estate development, technology, marketing, professional services, and private equity).
