dbwilliams@polsinelli.com

Dillon Williams focuses his practice in the areas of products liability, toxic torts, and premises liability. He is committed to providing sound legal advice and works closely with Polsinelli attorneys to successfully defend complex products liability and toxic tort matters.

Dillon has represented product manufacturers, premises owners, and various other corporations throughout all stages of litigation. Through this experience, he has taken numerous depositions of plaintiffs and lay witnesses. Dillon has successfully argued both discovery and dispositive motions, securing favorable outcomes for clients.

Dillon leverages his prior experience serving as an intern with the Johnson County District Attorney's Office, where he prosecuted criminal defendants on behalf of the State of Kansas. Additionally, he is a member of the Membership Subcommittee within the Diversity & Inclusion Committee in DRI. He particularly enjoys presenting on topics such as diversity & inclusion, and office culture as it relates to millennial professionals in the workplace.
