Lathan Verwoerd supports commercial real estate finance and transactional matters, assisting deal teams with diligence, documentation and risk identification for financing transactions involving real estate assets. He contributes to work across the transaction lifecycle, including loan originations, modifications and restructurings, helping evaluate business and real estate considerations that affect deal structure and execution.

His practice also includes broader corporate and real estate matters involving development, construction and related commercial issues. Lathan brings a foundation in federal government work to his practice, which informs his careful approach to reviewing issues and supporting clients through complex transactions.
