Matthew Lin is a health care deal lawyer that handles complex corporate transactions and related regulatory issues. Matt's practice draws on his understanding of the unique and rapidly developing legal risks facing members of the health care industry. He manages acquisitions and divestitures of various health care providers, including:

- Hospitals
- Physician practices
- Home health and hospice agencies
- Long-term care facilities
- Optometry
- Physical therapy
- Behavioral health

Matt advises clients on the regulatory challenges that impact health care deals, such as fraud and abuse laws, corporate practice of medicine and licensure issues. Matt has extensive experience in managing the potential disclosure of health care deals to state regulators like California's Office of Health Care Affordability (OHCA) and the Oregon Health Authority (OHA) under state "Mini-HSR" laws.

Before joining Polsinelli, Matt worked on white collar investigations and litigation matters at an international law firm. His work involved matters critical to the health care and life sciences industries, such as the Anti-Kickback Statute, the Federal and California False Claims Acts, health care fraud, the California Knox Keene Act and the Controlled Substances Act. During law school, Matt externed with the Criminal Division of the United States Attorney's Office for the Central District of California. He also served on the boards of the Harvard Asian Pacific American Law Students Association and the Harvard Prison Legal Assistance Project.
