Megan Harry represents businesses in complex commercial litigation, drawing on more than two decades of experience handling disputes in state and federal courts. Clients rely on Megan for strategic counsel in matters involving contract disputes, fraud, negligence and related business conflicts.

Megan works with companies across a range of industries, including real estate, retail, banking and health care. She approaches litigation with a strong focus on understanding each client's business operations and objectives, allowing her to develop strategies that support both immediate resolution and long-term goals.

Her experience includes trial and appellate litigation, regulatory-related disputes and matters involving highly technical or industry-specific issues. Megan emphasizes early evaluation of legal exposure, efficient motion practice and clear communication throughout the life of a case.

Clients value Megan's collaborative approach and steady guidance in complex disputes. She helps businesses navigate litigation challenges while remaining focused on continuity, risk management and value preservation.

Prior to joining Polsinelli, Megan practiced law at a San Francisco-based litigation firm, and served as counsel at the University of Colorado.

Matters

Commercial Litigation Experience:

- Represented a real estate development partner in recovering more than $1 million in misappropriated investment capital.
- Obtained a reversal in favor of a real estate client in the Colorado Court of Appeals, which reversed the lower court's entry of summary judgment and entered judgment in our clients' favor regarding a contract interpretation.
- Prevailed in the Colorado Court of Appeals concerning the state's hospital lien statute and the federal Medicare Secondary Payer Act.
- Prevailed in the Utah Supreme Court affirming health care clients' current lien collection practices.
- Defended a national health care provider in a challenge to acquisition pursuant to the Hospital Transfer Act before the Denver District Court and the Colorado Court of Appeals.
- Successfully defended a federal law enforcement agent in federal court against alleged Fourth Amendment violations.
- Represented a medical device company in a favorable settlement of a non-compete provision in federal court, protecting the client from potential judgment in the amount of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Energy Litigation Experience:

- Defended oil and gas spacing applications before the Colorado Oil and Gas Conservation Commission.
- Served on a team that handled land use, easement and boundary disputes and trespass in oil and gas and mineral disputes.

Energy Regulatory Experience:

- Represented national and international oil and gas operators and midstream companies from the startup phase through project completion.
- Assisted companies with regulatory permitting and land use approvals, working with local and state agencies in the process.
- Closely monitored the Colorado Oil and Gas Conservation Commission rulemakings, as well as Colorado's Senate Bill 19-181, which overhauled Colorado's regulation of oil and gas development.
