Olivia Winnett represents providers and health care organizations in complex civil litigation, government investigations and regulatory disputes. Drawing on experience in professional liability, employment and broader commercial matters, Olivia works at the intersection of health care and litigation — helping clients respond to legal challenges that carry operational, reputational and legal risk. She collaborates across teams to craft tailored strategies and drive practical resolutions in high-stakes environments.

Olivia brings valuable trial experience to her managed care litigation practice, having defended a healthcare professional in a multi-day jury trial. In that role, she worked closely with the client, expert witnesses and a multidisciplinary legal team — skills which she now leverages to support health care providers and organizations navigating complex disputes. Her collaborative approach and deep understanding of the pressures facing medical landscapes inform her commitment to achieving strategic, client-focused outcomes.
