Prithvi serves as general corporate counsel to early and growth stage technology companies building innovative products and services that are changing business processes and the way individuals use and interact with technology on a daily basis.

He strives to provide practical, relevant and actionable legal advice based on a hands-on understanding of clients' products and business goals. Over the past decade he's worked with hundreds of entrepreneurs to advise them and their companies through all stages of growth and serve as the company's tactical and strategic advisor on legal and business issues that arise in day-to-day operations.

Prithvi routinely advises companies on how to:

- incorporate and structure themselves;
- protect their intellectual property;
- raise capital;
- establish clear internal guidelines and procedures;
- negotiate and close commercial agreements;
- navigate regulatory compliance issues; and
- execute a successful exit.

Prithvi also advises early and growth stage investors on their portfolio investment activities.

Prithvi works with clients who are distributed throughout the United States and overseas. Prithvi has advised scores of foreign origin companies in connection with their establishment of a legal presence in the US both to raise venture capital and access the US commercial markets while still retaining their foreign operations.

Prior to his career in law, Prithvi was a technology management consultant, working on large-scale technology implementations and business process changes. He also co-founded his own software-based start-up while in college.
