Whitney Mayer is a litigator who focuses on product liability, employment law and complex commercial litigation nationwide. She represents clients in federal and state courts and has experience managing all phases of litigation, including discovery, motion practice and trial advocacy.

Whitney regularly drafts and argues dispositive and procedural motions and plays a key role in developing case strategy in high-exposure matters. Her practice includes defending clients in product liability claims and employment-related disputes, including discrimination, harassment and workplace-related claims.

Whitney brings a distinctive advantage to her litigation practice through her background in public health and epidemiology. She leverages this expertise during expert discovery and in matters involving scientific and medical evidence, helping clients address complex causation and damages issues.
