Zachary Langrehr is an associate in Polsinelli's Private Equity M&A practice. He represents private equity sponsors, strategic companies and other businesses in mergers and acquisitions, corporate transactions and general business matters. His experience includes advising buyers and sellers in asset and equity acquisitions, dispositions and other strategic transactions across a range of industries.

In addition to transactional work, Zachary advises clients on corporate governance, entity formation and structuring, and other general corporate matters. He also brings a background in accounting that informs his approach to complex business transactions. His representative experience includes advising on the sale of technology, cybersecurity, insurance, telecommunications and manufacturing companies, including transactions involving private equity-backed buyers and sellers, as well as acquisitions in the construction and refined fuels industries.
